

Paul Smucker Wagstaff is a recognized leader and investor in the Retail Consumer Foods industry in the United States. Currently, Paul is Managing Partner of Embassy Park Investment Company which specializes in advising and investing in the CPG food space. Previously, Paul was the Founder and CEO of Eagle Foods, a private equity-backed CPG food company based in Richfield, Ohio. Paul led the stand-up of the business after completing the platform acquisition of Eagle Brand Milk from The J.M. Smucker Company. Under Paul's leadership, the Eagle ready-to-eat popcorn brands became the fastest growing popcorn in the U.S. Additionally, he oversaw multiple capital projects including a plant consolidation and snacks automation.

Paul was President of The J.M. Smucker Company US Retail Consumer Foods Division where he successfully led a $2.4 billion business in net sales with over $400 million in profit. He is known as an agile learner with an intellectual "edge", collaborative and skilled at turning around troubled businesses. He combines an unusual balance of high achievement and competitiveness with an ability to temper stress for himself and those around him.

Paul currently serves on the Board of Agropur (one of the largest global dairy companies), Alphia (pet food manufacturer), Oakland Coffee (an early-stage coffee company founded by the band Green Day), TruRoots (natural and organic beverage/food), and Cyprium Partners (middle-market private investment firm). He has served on The J.M. Smucker Board of Directors, Advisory Council for Students in Free Enterprise, the Funders' Committee for The Fund For Our Economic Future, The Healthy Weight Committee Foundation Board of Governors, and The Old Trail School Board of Trustees.

Paul earned an MBA in International Business from Pepperdine University and completed his B.A. in International Relations at The College of Wooster.
